

WELCOME AT FROOTLAB

by Patrick Michl

19. March, 2019

We are a young developers team with strong expertise in data science and networking technologies. Our vision is to realize the full potential of artificial intelligence for scientific and industrial progress and always based on ethical principles.

For us communication and cooperation are the key factors and driving force beyond scientific and industrial progress. In order to realize our vision, we therefore used our personal experiences to identify today's foremost challenges in data science and started to develop comprehensive solutions, based on an entirely new programming paradigm.

According to our fundamental convictions we release our products as free and open-source software to provide universal access to research and education. Since the application of our products in industrial environments requires stable development and compliance with industrial standards, it is important to us to maintain the developmental sovereignty. For this reason we release our products as single vendor open-source projects rather than community-driven.